

Hearing the Voice of the Community

The Neighbourhood Centre wants to hear about what people want for their community. What are the key issues that are important to people to make the local community a better place to live? The key issues and ideas that the community identifies will inform The Neighbourhood Centre to assist in the development of strategies that are relevant and achievable.

Why are we doing this?

- To find out what matters to people
- To learn from people not usually heard
- To learn how people see their community
- To build capacity to work together.

The information gathered will be used to identify themes, develop conversations which will lead to the exploration of possibilities and identification of what needs to change.

You can make a contribution to this process, to share your aspirations for the community and share your ideas by answering the following four questions.

1. What kind of community do you want to live in?
2. Why is that important to you?
3. How is that different from how you see things now?
4. What are some of the things that need to happen to create that kind of change?
